REPORT NO. [REDACTED]

Early in 1950 a representative of the Chinese Communist government persuaded four Mongol residents of Nanking to go to North China. The group included Soehongga*, KUAN Yin-nan and LI Hui-shan. On their arrival in Peiping, the four Mongols were urged, but not ordered, to go to Wangyehmiao. Only Soehongga went. When he reached Wangyehmiao, he was tried for treason, found guilty and executed.*

* Comment. Despite the discrepancy in the dates ascribed, this information appears to refer to the events reported in paragraph 1, although the two accounts differ widely in details. The reference to Wangyehmiao above would appear to indicate that Sochoangga went north before the capital of the inner Mongolian People's Government had been completely transferred to Kalgan.
